

March

Traditionally garden foliage serves several useful purposes:

1. It defines the garden space
2. It unifies the garden via repetition
3. It's leaves and bark provide color and texture highlights in the garden
4. It allows the seasonal performers to "pop" in the garden
5. In winter, it provides the primary seasonal interest.

HOW BORING, we are wasting this resource.

Karen Chapman from Le jardinet is coming to put Foliage First in our minds. Her talk will position foliage into three garden categories:

Highlight

Limelight

This talk will revolutionize how you use foliage in your garden.
